

Academia Checklist

The Presidential Management Fellows (PMF) Program opens its application annually in the fall (typically for a period of two weeks in September/October). Below are tips and best practices on how academic staff can prepare and support their current and recent graduates in submitting applications.

SPRING/SUMMER: IN ADVANCE OF THE APPLICATION

1. Educate yourself and colleagues:

- Review the website content on www.pmf.gov, including the PMF Applicant Handbook, the PMF Presentation for Academic Stakeholders, and additional resources;
- Confirm and save upcoming application dates (once announced and posted to the PMF website);
- Inform graduate school career services staff, deans, faculty, and other departments about the PMF Program.

2. Educate graduate students about the PMF Program early:

- Hold informational sessions for graduate students and recent alum prior to the annual application;
- Put the PMF Program on students' radar early: graduate students in their final year of study and graduate students who graduated two years from the application open date will be eligible to apply;
- To inquire about scheduling a presentation or webinar, or connect with program alumni, visit the PMF Ambassadors page on the PMF website or send an email to pmfapplication@opm.gov;
- Share resources with students, most importantly the PMF Applicant Handbook found on the "Become a PMF/Resources" section on the PMF website.

FALL: LEADING UP TO THE APPLICATION

3. Familiarize yourself with the PMF application documentation requirements:

- Confirm your institution's transcripts meet program requirements (including third-party sites for unofficial transcripts) by reviewing the "Become a PMF/Application Process/Application Tips" section on the PMF website.
- If needed, provide an alternative letter to supplement any transcript requirements. Refer to the PMF Program Required Application Documents and Alternative Letter guidance under the Academia/Resources section on the PMF website, which is also posted under the Become a PMF/Resources section on the PMF website.

4. Attend the Annual Academic Stakeholders Meetings:

- Join the PMF Program Office's Annual Academic Stakeholders Meetings, where we provide updates regarding the program and the upcoming application specific to academia. The PMF Program Office will send an email via our Subscriber List for Academic Stakeholders to announce the date and time of the webinars;
- Ask questions and share resources with students;
- Invite colleagues who work with graduate students in all academic disciplines to join—the more representation you have on campus, the more likely students with diverse disciplines are to apply in the future!

5. Send graduate students reminders leading up to the launch of the application and encourage them to attend one of the PMF Informational Webinars for Potential Applicants held prior to the application.

POST-APPLICATION

6. Connect with Finalists from your institution:

- Once Finalists are announced, if you are signed up for our Subscriber List for Academic Stakeholders, you will receive a notification from the PMF Program Office with a link to the list of current Finalists (i.e., those who have provided their consent to be publicly listed). Stay in touch to learn where they find placement and how they can help promote the program on your campus in the future.

NOTE: Some resources (e.g., the "PMF Applicant Handbook") are specific to that class year's application and subject to change.
